

The card goes down with the check. Every table, every time.

YOUR RESTAURANT

Tap to review us
on Google

Hold your phone here

1

Drop it with the check

Put the card in the check presenter or next to it, face up. One optional line, then walk away: "If you'd like to leave us an honest review on Google, just tap your phone on this. Now or whenever."

2

Show, don't explain

If they look unsure: "Hold the top of your iPhone on it," or "the back of your Android." A link pops up. They tap it and the review screen opens.

3

Pick it up with the check

The card comes back with the signed slip. Wipe it if needed. It goes back in your apron for the next table.

SAY THIS

"If you'd like to leave us an honest review on Google, just tap your phone on this. Now or whenever."

"A link pops up, you tap it, and the review page opens. Takes about a minute."

Then leave the table. The guest decides, on their own phone, in their own time.

NEVER SAY THIS

"Only if it's five stars." We ask everyone the same way. Asking only happy guests breaks Google's rules.

"I'll take something off the bill if you review us." No rewards for reviews. Ever.

"Mention my name." Guests can, but we never ask them to.

"Could you do it before you go?" No waiting at the table, no hovering. Pressure on the premises is against Google's rules.

IF THE TAP DOES NOT WORK

iPhone: the reader is at the top edge. Screen on, phone unlocked. Older iPhones (7, 8, X) need the NFC reader in Control Center.

Android: the reader is on the back, usually the upper half. Screen on.

Thick wallet case or a metal table under the card? Lift the card and hold it in the air.

Still nothing? Flip the card. The QR code on the back opens the same page.

CARD CARE

Wipe with sanitizer. Do not bend or punch a hole in it.

Lost or broken? Tell the manager. 10 replacements a month are included.

